Implications of resumption of H20/MI308 sales in China; Positive for AI server/component supply chain

Nvidia announced (link) that 1) it is filing applications to resume H20 chip sales to China, 2) the US government has assured that licenses will be granted and delivery is expected to resume soon, and 3) it announced a new, fully compliant RTX PRO GPU for China. Also, media reported (link) that AMD planned to restart MI308 shipment to China once the US completes licensing review. We believe this is a major positive for China AI server/component suppliers, after the US's H20/ MI308 export ban started in April, and it also suggests B30's potential launch in the near future. Based on our previous estimate (our note), Nvidia's US$5.5bn inventory write-down would imply 1.1mn H20 chips and 138k H20 AI servers (~30% of AI server market in China), and total H20 demand in China would reach 1.5-1.6mn in 2025 (vs US$16bn orders as reported). Therefore, we expect H20 inventories and the new B30 product will start to be delivered to Chinese CSPs in 2H25E once license is granted, which will benefit China AI server/component supply chain names, including BYDE, Luxshare, FII, Huaqin and Lenovo.

- The US's H20/MI308 ban lifted sooner than expected; new B30 expected for launch in 2H25E. Nvidia announced that it has received assurances from the US government that it can resume sales of H20 chips in China, and it also announced a new, fully compliant RTX PRO GPU for China. Also, AMD is reportedly preparing to resume MI308 shipment to China. Our analysis estimated Nvidia's US$5.5bn inventory write-down in CY1Q25 is equivalent to 1.1mn H20 chips and 138k H20 AI servers, and ~1mn H20 chips/125k H20 AI servers were shipped to China in 2024, accounting for ~30% of China AI server market (420k units) in 2024. Based on media report, H20/RTX6000D demand could reach 1.4-1.6mn/1-2mn in 2025 (link), and new B30 will be launched in China in 3Q25E with over 1mn shipments in 2025 (link).
- Implications to AI server/component supply chain. Although H20 sales resumption is partially anticipated by the market after CEO Jensen's meeting in Washington last week and his visit in Beijing this week, we believe the US's H20 sales resumption comes in earlier than expected, which will be positive to China server supply chain sentiment in the near term, including AI server brands/ODM/component names. For BYDE, it expected to start H20 server OEM biz in 2025 and it is also qualified for Nvidia AI server components (UQD/NUQD, cold plate, manifold, busbar, power shelf). For Luxshare, it is qualified to ship high-speed cables for Nvidia AI servers, and its subsidiary, Time Interconnect (1729 HK, NR), focuses on server ODM for Chinese CSPs. For FII, it expected its global AI server market share to exceed 40% in 2025, and AI server revenue will account 50% for total server revenue. For Huagin, it targeted datacenter revenue of RMB40bn in 2025, given strong H20 AI server ODM (mainly in 1H25) and robust shipments of general servers and switches. For Lenovo, servers are the main drivers for its ISG business, and it expected to benefit from AI capex from clients across CSPs and enterprises given its strong capability across the servers and liquid cooling.

This month, NVIDIA founder and CEO Jensen Huang promoted AI in both Washington, D.C. and Beijing — emphasizing the benefits that AI will bring to business and society worldwide.

In the U.S. capital, Huang met with President Trump and U.S. policymakers, reaffirming NVIDIA's support for the Administration's effort to create jobs, strengthen domestic AI infrastructure and onshore manufacturing, and ensure that America leads in AI worldwide.

In Beijing, Huang met with government and industry officials to discuss how AI will raise productivity and expand opportunity. The discussions underscored how researchers worldwide can advance safe and secure AI for the benefit of all.

Huang also provided an update to customers, noting that NVIDIA is filing applications to sell the NVIDIA H20 GPU again. The U.S. government has assured NVIDIA that licenses will be granted, and NVIDIA hopes to start deliveries soon. Finally, Huang announced a new. fully compliant NVIDIA RTX PRO GPU that "is ideal for digital twin AI for smart factories and logistics."

As Huang noted during his visits, the world has reached an inflection point — Al has become a fundamental resource, like energy, water and the internet. Jensen emphasized NVIDIA's commitment to support open-source research, foundation models and applications, which democratize Al and will empower emerging economies in every region, including Latin America, Europe, Asia and beyond.

"General-purpose, open-source research and foundation models are the backbone of Al innovation," Huang explained to reporters in D.C. "We believe that every civil model should run best on the U.S. technology stack, encouraging nations worldwide to choose America."
