Resilient 1Q26 earnings growth despite AI investment; solid AI progress

Tencent reported 1Q26 results: total revenue grew by 9% YoY to RMB196.5bn, 1.5% below Bloomberg consensus estimate, as the later timing of the 2026 Spring Festival led to less revenue recognition for games business in 1Q26; non-IFRS operating income increased by 9% YoY to RMB75.6bn, largely in line with the consensus and our estimate. Non-IFRS operating profit excluding new AI product investment grew by 17% YoY to RMB84.4bn, which in our view demonstrates Tencent's strong operating leverage and capability to maintain steady earnings growth despite stepped-up AI investment. The quarterly earnings impact from AI investment (c.RMB9bn) is also in line with management's previous guidance (>RMB36bn investment in FY26E). Overall, we keep our FY26-28E earnings forecasts largely unchanged, and maintain our SOTP-derived target price of HK$750.0. We remain upbeat on Tencent's earnings resilience and accumulated AI competitiveness, and current valuation (15x FY26E non-IFRS PE) offers attractive risk-reward, in our view. Reiterate BUY.

- Core businesses maintained healthy momentum. In 1Q26: 1) Games revenue grew by 8% YoY to RMB64.2bn, with domestic games/international games revenue up by 6%/13% YoY. The growth decelerated (+21% YoY in 4Q25) as the later timing of the 2026 Spring Festival led to fewer days for revenue recognition of the peak season in 1Q26. Domestic games gross receipt maintained teens% YoY growth, driven by both evergreen and new games; 2) Marketing services revenue increased by 20% YoY to RMB38.2bn, as AI continued to improve ad performance and pricing. The automated ad campaign solution, AIM+, already powered c.30% of total marketing spending in 1Q26. 3) Fintech and Business Services revenue grew by 9% YoY to RMB59.9bn. Business services revenue grew by 20% YoY, driven by solid growth of cloud revenue and e-commerce service fees. Commercial payment volume growth also accelerated in 1Q26, thanks to an increase in number of transactions and higher value per transaction.
- Solid progress on the AI fronts. Tencent achieved solid progress on the LLM & agentic AI fronts: 1) HY3 Preview model topped token usage ranking on OpenRouter (23 Apr-12 May), thanks to its comprehensive intelligence and strong cost efficiency; 2) WorkBuddy, AI productivity application, achieved solid user growth with over 80% retention rate among paying users. WorkBuddy is now the most popular productivity AI agent service in China, measured by DAU, according to management. Looking ahead, Tencent's LLM team will focus on building larger parameter model, supported by a bigger and more quality dataset, which we expect to further enhance competitiveness of HY model and expand its use cases.
- Stable margin despite increased AI investment. Non-IFRS OPM was flat YoY at 38.5% in 1Q26, as the operating leverage was largely offset by increased AI investment. Excluding earnings impact from the new AI product investment, non-IFRS OPM expanded by c.3ppt YoY to 43.0% in 1Q26. Overall, we expect Tencent to maintain steady non-IFRS OP growth of 8% YoY in FY26E despite stepped-up AI investment.
